

Person-Centered Planning

Presented By

COLORADO
Department of Education

Helping Students Effectively Plan for Their Future

Join us in learning how to seamlessly incorporate Person-Centered Planning into your current transition processes.

Person-Centered Planning is a process that helps students with disabilities plan for their future while also promoting self-determination.

Participants will learn planning strategies to help students identify their dreams, strengths, preferences, interests, and needs.

Sessions will include an overview of Person-Centered Planning and practice using a variety of Charting the LifeCourse (CtLC) tools to help students reach their potential and their dreams.

REGISTRATION LINK

Registration will be open through January 20, 2022, or until the course is full.

Email Gail Lott, Lott_G@cde.state.co.us with any questions.

Requirements to Receive Credit

In order to receive twelve (12) CDE contact hours (no partial credit available), participants must:

- Attend the four (4) full 1.5-hour trainings.
- Complete all session assignments (action plan with at least one student)

Course Dates & Information

- February 3, 2022, 3:30 - 5:00pm:
1.5-hour training
- February 9, 2022, 3:30 - 5:00pm:
1.5-hour training
- February 23, 2022, 3:30 - 5:00pm:
1.5-hour training
- March 9, 2022, 3:30 - 5:00 pm:
1.5-hour training

Robin Brewer is an Instructional Coach for the Colorado Department of Education (CDE) assisting schools to develop inclusive services for students with significant support needs. Additionally, Robin is an emeritus Associate Professor from UNC having retired after 19 years. Robin helped start the Go On And Learn (GOAL) program for students with Developmental Disabilities at UNC. Previously, Robin served as a trainer for Person Centered Planning focusing on MAPS, Individual Planning Sessions (IPS) and Planning Alternative Tomorrows with Hope (PATH).